

How to arrive to Orihuela

The city of Orihuela has excellent transport links that allow to reach it by road, train, air and even sea (the latter through the port of Alicante). Below are the most common means of transport.

Orihuela by car

To get Orihuela by car from Alicante or Murcia you can take the Mediterranean Highway A7-E15 or the N340 national road. It is also reached through the Alicante-Cartagena toll highway AP-7. It is recommended, however, to take always the AP-E15 as this is the cheapest and fastest option.

Taking AP-E15, from Alicante are 57 kms and it takes approximately 40 to 50 minutes to arrive. From Murcia, although the way by the national road is shorter, the AP-15 is faster (it is 36 kms and it takes something less than 30 minutes to reach by this way).

Orihuela by train or bus

Orihuela has a modern and renewed station, the Intermodal Station of Orihuela "Miguel Hernández", which combines several means of transport: the AVE, long distance and regional trains, Feve, the bus station (urban and interurban, regional and national) and taxi rank. In this station you can buy or book tickets or find out about the train and bus schedule, as well as receive tourist information about the city.

The city has continuous routes and connections with all the Spanish Levante, Catalonia, Andalusia, the North and the capital of our country.
